

I have a letter here, especially for you.

Dear you...

Recently, children have been at home a lot more than usual due to coronavirus.

That may be uncomfortable for some of you.

For instance, if there's someone at home who touches your privates.

Maybe you're thinking right now: This is about me!

If so, I want to tell you something.
You haven't done anything wrong.
It's not your fault.
This is not how it should be at home,
no-one should touch your private parts.

So whatever they tell you, it's not normal and, most importantly...
It's not your fault.

I also want you to know: it's not strange if this makes you feel uncomfortable or alone, or if you try not to think about it.

I understand that.

And I also understand that you like the other person and want to protect him or her.

Or that you think 'I'm never going to tell anyone about this, ever'.

Don't let anyone tell you that you have to keep quiet.

You're allowed to talk about it. But you don't have to if now's not the moment.

You can choose when to talk about it, or to write it down, so that someone you trust can read it at a later date.

Someone who can help you put a stop to it.

No matter what, you're a great kid!

High five for you, you deserve it!
